

Opportunity to teach in East Africa

Specialists with teaching experience required to deliver courses in East Africa

The RCP is embarking on a new 3 year project in collaboration with the East African Development Bank and British Council to support the delivery of training courses in oncology and neurology.

We are looking for members and fellows to deliver one week training courses in May and/or September 2016.

Volunteers will design and deliver content alongside faculty members in Kenya, Tanzania, Uganda or Rwanda and potentially another UK-based volunteer leading on the areas which pertain to their specialty.

We are recruiting for the following specialists:

- Medical oncology
- Neurology

Essential criteria:

- Be an RCP fellow or collegiate member
- Experience as a specialist in medical oncology or neurology
- Demonstrable experience and expertise in teaching

Desirable criteria:

- Experience of teaching and training in Africa or other resource-poor settings

Closing date for applications: 19 February 2016.

Courses and teaching visits will take place in May and September 2016 and dates will be agreed in consultation with successful applicants.

For an informal discussion about the opportunity, please contact Jennifer Eastin (Project Officer) at Jennifer.Eastin@rcplondon.ac.uk.
